As owner of TRIAD HR Consulting, Dorothy A. Person brings experience as a trainer and speaker, human resources consultant and hands on HR manager for 40 years. She holds a Masters of Public Administration certification, Professional Human Resources (PHR) certification and attended the University of Minnesota Business Administration.

She has consulted with small and large employers in employment settings of public, private and nonprofit, including a national consulting firm, state and local government, nonprofit organizations, financial institutions and her own consulting company.

Dorothy's approach to fair and practical answers to career issues grew out of civil rights investigations in the early 1970's, involvement in state and local pay equity issues which led into the objectivity of human resources.

Any organization needs to address the triad of its most important members – employers, employees and human resources. Dorothy's consulting approach places top priority on practical, unique and fair approaches to these issues.
